New Mexico State University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer and educator.
NMSU and the US Department of Agriculture cooperating.

... Did you know?

The Food and Agriculture Sector has been deemed by the United States Government as a “Critical Infrastructure Segment” under Presidential Policy and the Department of Homeland Security.

When Congress passed the Smith-Lever Act in 1914 and created the Cooperative Extension System at USDA, it included work of various boys' and girls' clubs involved with agriculture, home economics and related subjects, which effectively nationalized the 4-H organization. By 1924, these clubs became organized as 4-H clubs, and the green clover emblem was adopted.

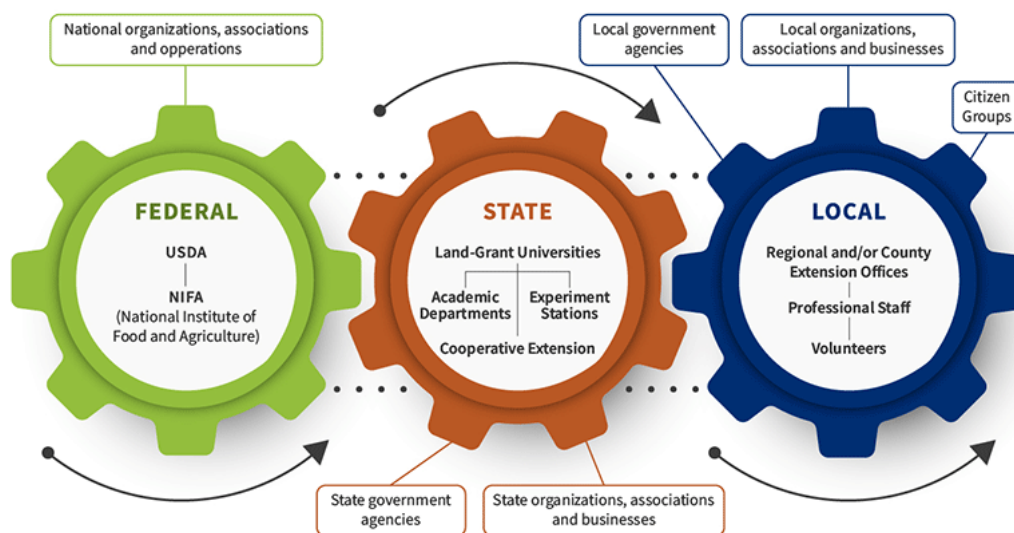

The Cooperative Extension System is a unique partnership of the National Institute of Food and Agriculture (NIFA) within the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), the 109 land-grant universities (in every state and territory) and there are more than 3,000 county extension offices.

As a publicly funded, non-formal collaborative national educational network, the Cooperative Extension combines the expertise and resources of federal, state, and local governments. The Cooperative Extension is designed to meet the need for research, knowledge and educational programs that enable all people to make practical decisions.

Through the local county and state offices, Extension staff provides research-based information, non-formal educational programs and technical advice directly to individual, families and communities that enable them to be self reliant and improve their lives.

Since the Covid Virus pandemic arose, Extension offices and communications remained open across the country to aid county residents during this crisis.

National 4-H Week is October 2—8, 2022. We encourage all county youth between the ages of 5 to 19 to become a part of this extraordinary and rewarding organization! 🍀

The Cooperative Extension System (CES) empowers farmers, ranchers, and communities of all sizes to meet the challenges they face, adapt to changing technology, improve nutrition and food safety, prepare and respond to emergencies, and protect our environment.
